

“Do you know how many conscious parents today are searching for endearing and meaningful stories that are not overly religious or dogmatic? These parents wish to avoid the trite corporate garbage; yet search for material that will help their children to build meaningful relationships with the natural and human world?”

I help children have magical and imaginative childhoods – that’s my gift.”

Eric James Wolf

You can hear Brother Wolf weekly on his podcast “The Art of Storytelling with Children” a national conversation for all members of the storytelling movement and anyone else who has a love of story.

“Eric James Wolf connected with the students his stories related to their lives.”

Jim McKenna Coordinator of Children’s Programming, American Museum of Natural History, NYC.

“...when a gifted storyteller is within our midst, we sit back, cherish, learn and enjoy being with them. Eric is such a tale spinner!”

Cathryn R. Bump, Waldorf Teacher

“What a storyteller! His stories are well researched, well shaped, and full of the richness of a good book Eric is a pro who works well with everyone, and who loves what he does. No matter how loose or reserved his listeners, he reaches us all.”

Kit Crawford, Younger Group Teacher, Antioch School

“Eric Wolf’s stories unfold with tension and energy, yet connect to children in a positive way. He narrates with energy and commitment and draws us in with a warm, gentle, and engaging voice.”

Dr. Barbara Barnes, peace educator

“Eric’s stories reinforced the educational goals of our program and helped the students learn in a way that was both meaningful and memorable. I highly recommend Eric as an imaginative and captivating storyteller. He is a pleasure to work with!”

Zayanne Thompson, Outdoor Education Director

“Eric Wolf uses the traditional material of children’s stories and makes these alive for young people today. His voice is warm, artful, and appealing. He speaks in a tone and with language that will appeal to children of various ages.”

Dr. Eli Messinger, child psychiatrist
